QUARTERLY CONVENTION. Woman's Christian Temperance Union

The quarterly convention of the District Woman's Christian Temperance Union began this morning in the Eckington Presbyterian Church, North Capitol and Q streets northwest, Mrs. Clinton Smith presiding. The session was opened with singing and devotionals conducted by Mrs. T. T. Moore, president of the North Capitol Union. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Emma Sanford Shelton, recording secretary, and Mrs. De Reimer, corresponding secretary, read her quarterly report. Rev. W. T. Thompson, pastor of the church, made the address of welcome, saying among other things that he would rathunion in existence, because it stands for purity in manhood and womanhood. Mrs. C. P. Granfield, District treasurer, responded to Mr. Thompson's address. Rev. J. Russell Verbrycke, pastor of the Gurley Memorial Presbyterian Church, de-livered an address, dwelling upon the importance of woman's work in the uplifting of a community. The report of the treasurer showed a prosperous condition of af-fairs. Mrs. Jennie H. Robinson, president of the board of trustees, made her report and announced that an "ingathering" and reception will be held at the W. C. T. U. headquarters on 6th street northwest, be-tween E and F streets, next Tuesday, when the ladies will report as to the result of their work to decrease the debt on the building. A report was also made by Mrs.

Shelton, as financial secretary of the board Mrs. C. W. Gallagher, evangelistic superintendent, conducted a noontide hour of prayer, after which luncheon was served by the ladies of the church.

The afternoon session began about 2 o'clock. The prayer service was conducted by Mrs. M. E. Cohen, District vice president. Mrs. Margaret Dye Ellis, national legislative representative of the W. C. T. U., delivered an address. During the afternoon there will be various other addresse and reports. The convention is expected to adjourn about 4 o'clock.

Likely to Be Investigated.

As a result of the dismissal today by Justice Anderson of the cross-bill of James O. Holmes against his wife, Sarah O. Holmes, for divorce, it is probable that the character of the testimony given by witnesses in connection with the case will be made the subject of an investigation by the grand Anti-Polygamy Resolutions Adopted by Women's Convention Today-Other Business Matters.

The National Council-or Women went into election of officers the first thing this morning, and, though the result wa harmony, there were things doing while the voting was in progress. Mrs. Mary Wood Swift was re-elected national president. Mrs. Swift is filling out the unexpired term of Mrs. Tod Helmuth of Chicago, who resigned about a year ago. Mrs. Swift will serve the society three years longer, and will attend the next quinquennial session of the International Council of Women. Mrs. Swift said in accepting the presidency that she had expected to go home free from bondage, but that she would do the best she could for the council.

Mrs. Flo Jamison Miller, Corresponding Secretary

Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett was re-elected national senior vice president; Mrs. Belinda Bailey of California, national president of the Ladies of the G. A. R., was elected corresponding secretary; Mrs. Francis Burns of Michigan was re-elected first recording secretary, and Mrs. Isabelle Quinlan second recording secretary.

Declaration on Polygamy.

There was an exciting ten minutes today, when the anti-polygamy resolutions came before the council. Determined effort was made to keep them back this morning and just as determined an effort to have to satisfy all. Miss Sadie American moved them introduced. Demands were heard from all over the house for them. Miss ciety of Jewish Women, finally demanded that, as this was on the business program, the resolutions passed upon by the mittee on resolutions, of which Mrs. Elizabeth Grannis is chairman, be presented.

the resolutions, refused to sign them as having passed her committee and in every way endeavored to prevent immediate acion. There was intense excitement.

Mrs. Grannis finally yielded to a vote of which declared formally:
"Whereas the family is the unit of civic organization and purity in family life can lone insure safety for the state: Therefore "Resolved. That to secure fidelity and jusice for all in the state there must be purity in the home in which the family is

"Resolved. That any practice which life shall be strongly deprecated, and that since polygamous marriages are so terrible an evil, which threatens to destroy the home and state in portions of our country, the people should petition and protest against the seating or the holding of a seat in our national Congress by any man who may practice or subscribe to it

Upon vote being taken on the resolutions there were but three negative votes cast. Pauline Stinem, who represents the Jewish society, objected to these resolu-tions because, she stated, she is not in favor of persecuting any one for his religion. She said Mormon organizations, two at least, are members of the national council of women in good standing, and had done their part in the work of the council. To adopt these resolutions would be to practically serve notice to them to leave.

Mrs. Manchester replied that this would not have any effect on the national council of women at all. It was just saying that the council denounces polygamy, and that these two members of the council may draw out if they choose. The council, she said, is not trying to rid itself of anybody. Mrs. Manchester said she was president of the executive council when the two Mormon organizations of women came to the don organizations of women came to the council. She did not know just how they got in, but they did. When delegates from these two organizations appeared in the next council, and the question was asked how they got in, the reply was made that they were "rich" and would help the coun-

Miss Anthony was strongly opposed to the political end of the resolution. She said that as women are not voters in the majority of states, she does not believe women had any right to dictate to either the voters of the country, to Congress or to the state legislatures.

Mrs. Sewall objected to hurting the feel-

Mrs. Sewall objected to hurting the feelings of any one of their affiliatory organizations. She always opposed such radical action, she said, though in the main she agreed with the resolution. "We did not accept these societies as Mormons," she added, "When we accepted them they came in as literary and philanthropic societies."

wide range of subjects which the members are discussing, and which yesterday began with the primal fall of man, leading through devious, but by no means blind, paths right u) to the President, and "The Man with the Hoe." The debaters took in the Mor-mon question, white slave traffic, race sui-cide, woman's suffrage, total depravity, child labor, peace and arbitration, war, the race problem, dress, social evil and edu-cation and dress reform. Very few of the women who talked confined themselves to paper. Most of them "talked straight from the shoulder" and knew their subjects so well that "to sidetrack them they would have to be chloroformed," one admiring member of the audience declared to the Star reporter.

The event of the evening session was the incisive, done-to-a-rich-brown roast which Rev. Anna Howard Shaw gave the President's "race suicide" theories. She declared that there was a lot of "sentimental gush' about the matter, and then be-thought herself of something which she declared would fit better than that. Rev. Anna Howard Shaw is said to be one of the most brilliant, magnetic and convincing talkers in the country today, and from the applause which punctuated her eloquence last evening, she is sustaining her reputa-

After designating the talk about race suicide as "sentimental gush" she declared that there was an English expression which suited her better, and that there was nothsuited her better, and that there was non-ing in the American vocabulary which suited her as well. So she reiterated her contempt for the unintelligent discussion of the race suicide question and declared "tommy-rot," and her auditors cheered until they were red in the face at the expression and the emphasis of it.

Chairman of Rules Committee.

The president appointed Mrs. Hollister chairman of a standing committee to formulate rules for the government of the council and Mrs. Stenem and Mrs. Nelson were made members of the committee.

Mrs. May Wright Sewall read a cable message from the council of women of Holland and the council voted to send greetings of the American council and to he council of Canada.

The minutes of yesterday's session on being read raised a perfect storm of discussion. It seemed that the minutes in regard to the amendment on representation were not clear. In the discussion on the was voted as stated in yesterday's Star to increase it, but when the minutes were read this morning there was a doubt as to whether this increase was meant to be in the national council or the executive committee. The majority claimed that the intention of the council was to increase this merely in the executive committee, to correct the minutes to make the increase of representation at the executive meetings, but Mrs. Burns, recording secretary, said that the minutes could not be picked to pieces. Mrs. Shaw held that as this was an adjourned meeting they could correct any errors in the minutes if the majority so ruled. The minutes were finally referred to the executive board for cor-

Mrs. May Wright Sewall, whose health is bad, resigned the responsible chairmanship of the committee on peace and arbitration. Moves for New Committee.

Miss Shaw, president of the Woman's Naional Suffrage Association, asked that a new committee be added to the standing list and that it should be designated as the committee on "Political Equality and Civil Rights of Women," to correspond with a like committee in the international council

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster said the suggestion of such a committee as this marked an epoch in the history of the national council of women, showing that the old conservaism was dying out and that the national council of women stood ready to advance and keep step with the times.

The motion to appoint such a standing ommittee was unanimously adopted. Miss Anthony said she was delighted when, at the international council at Ber-lin, she witnessed the adoption of a suffrage clause and a committee appointed. She was even more delighted to have the National Council of Women of the United States make a like committee to hold up the hands of Miss Shaw. She considered it a great step in advance.

Another standing committee appointed bears the name "Equal moral standards for men and women." This committee was to have had double duties and to have a hyphenated name, "and for the suppression of the white slave traffic," but after due consideration the council decided to lop off seemed to cover the whole subject.

Chairman of Resolutions Committee. Among the women pioneers in aggressive and progressive effort for woman, regardless of race, the name of Mrs. Grannis will go down in history. Since the inception of the council Mrs. Grannis has been one of the prominent figures at each session. Representing more than does the usual member she has put her hand to many a plan to break the hard soil that the seeds of reform might spring up and bear fruit. For thirteen consecutive years she has been elected president of the National Christian League, for the promotion of purity, and in advocating its principles Mrs. Grannis has been able to gain the ear of the public before vast audiences. There is scarcely a phase of woman's work with which she is not identified, and in all those efforts bearing directly on the betterment of individual life she has gladly

In the national council Mrs. Grannis holds an important position. The resolutions which give form and color to the movements of the council and shape the policy of that great and influential body all pass of that great and influential body all pass through her hands before they come to the convention. The task of tactfully and skillfully rejecting any undesirable ones and sifting any sentiment calculated to benefit any branch of the council is no small task. But it is claimed for her that the duties have been faithfully carried out, and harmony is usually sustained on the point of each resolution.

"Man With the Hoe."

A feature which gave intense pleasure to an audience which reached to the outside doors of the Pythian Temple last night was the reading of the "Man with the Hoe" by Edwin Markham. Responding to the enthusiastic reception of this now world-famed poem, Mr. Markham read a number of other poems from his book.

Then came Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, with her appeal for women and their right to the ballot.

"There is one shape that is more terrible than "The Man with the Hoe," she said, "and that is the wife of the man with the hoe. In all the ages men have been adjusting themselves to their environment to fit themselves for the world's service, but they have never done it. nt themselves for the world's service, but they have never done it. At the same time men have been adjusting themselves to men's ideals of the world's service, and they have never done it. To the men who prate about wifehood and motherhood the women must rise and tell that there is a husband-hood and fatherhood as well. Other Addresses.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Belinda Bailey, national president of the Ladles of the G.

"It has been said," she declared. "that there is no good reason for the existence of any society based on the idea of war except the G. A. R. The Courage of Convictions.

The National Council of Women has the effective arbitrament of war in the actual courage of its convictions, as shown by the county circuit court at Salem on the charge of betrayal of a young Salem girl.
